THIS PROJECT REPORTED THE RESULTS OF THE SIXTH REVISION OF STATISTICS ON FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE BA DEGREE. IT WAS FOUND THAT, OUT OF 899 COLLEGES WHICH GRANT SUCH A DEGREE, A FOREIGN LANGUAGE IS REQUIRED FOR ENTRANCE BY 284 INSTITUTIONS, AND FOR THE BA BY 772. TABLES ARE LISTED WHICH COMPARE STATISTICS WITH THOSE OF A 1957 SURVEY. THE STATISTICS SHOW THAT THE TREND TO MAKE A FOREIGN LANGUAGE A PREREQUISITE FOR THE BA DEGREE CONTINUES, WHILE, AT THE SAME TIME, MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF AMERICAN COLLEGES WILL ACCEPT STUDENTS FOR ADMISSION WHO HAVE NEVER BEEN EXPOSED TO A FOREIGN LANGUAGE. FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE B.A. DEGREE IN ACCREDITED COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

JEANINE PARISIER PLOTTEL*
Research Associate, Modern Language Association

THIS sixth revision of statistics on foreign language entrance and degree requirements for the B.A. degree shows that out of 899 colleges which grant such a degree,[1] a foreign language is required for entrance by 284 or 31.6%, and for the B.A. by 772 or 85.9%. Since 12 schools not having a foreign language degree requirement have a foreign language entrance requirement, this brings the total number with some sort of language requirement to 784 or 87.2%. The following table shows how these figures compare with those obtained by the Modern Language Association in its 1957 survey:[2]

Number of Colleges Granting B.A. Degree		Colleges with Foreign Language Entrance Requirements				Colleges with Foreign Language Degree Requirements
1957	1960	1957		1960		1957		1960
		No.	%	No.	%	No.	%	No.	%
836	899	238	28.5	284	31.6	709	84.8	772	85.9

We see that some progress has been made in this realm since 1957, more in fact than is indicated by the total percentage because of the 68 colleges added to our list.[3] Many of these have just begun to grant the B.A. and have not had the necessary time to complete transition to a new curriculum.

Since 1957, 22 colleges have initiated a foreign language entrance requirement, 26, a foreign language degree requirement; 5 colleges have dropped their foreign language entrance requirements; 2, their degree requirements; 4 colleges have strengthened their entrance requirements; and 14, their degree requirements.[3]

The following statistics, obtained through a letter-form questionnaire, and checked against college catalogues, show that the trend to make a foreign language a sine qua non for the B.A. degree continues, yet more than two thirds of American colleges will accept students for admission who have never been exposed to a language other than their mother tongue. Although several colleges without explicit entrance requirements do in fact accept few students who cannot present foreign language credits, many others profess they have such requirements, but waive them when the occasion warrants, especially in the case of gifted students who come from high schools which do not include foreign languages in their curriculum. This is the reason most often used for not making foreign languages an absolute requirement: to penalize such students would be unfair. The result is that only 4 out of 46 colleges in Texas, for example, require foreign languages for admission, and that not a single college in any of the following states has a foreign language entrance requirement: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Hawaii, Idaho, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Wyoming. An optimistic note for the future is that seven of these states are among the nineteen in the territory covered by the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges, whose 3500 member schools voted, by a 90% majority, to require at least two years of foreign language instruction beginning in 1963. The roster of states: Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, * Previous editions of this compilation were made by Ella Decker, C. Grant Loomis, and Donald D. Walsh. The present revision was made under contract with the United States Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

[1] Our list includes only four-year colleges and universities granting the B.A. degree, and accredited by regional accreditation association. We have added 68 new colleges and have removed 5 from the list used by Ella Decker in the 1957 revision.

[2] Note that the 1957 figures in this table differ slightly from those published by the Modern Language Association in its 1957 revision (PMLA, Sept. 1957, LXII, No. 4, Part 2, p. 33); erroneous information given by a number of colleges has been corrected.

[3] See the appendix for the names of these colleges.

Nebraska, New Mexico, North and South Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

A comparison can be made between foreign language offerings in the high schools of a state and the foreign language requirements for admission to its colleges. Many states have either strength or weakness in both areas, but in 21 states, the percentage of high schools that offer foreign languages is conspicuously higher than the percentage of colleges in the state that have a foreign-language entrance requirement: Arizona, 93.6% and 0%; California, 99.1% and 41%; Colorado, 59.8% and 9%; Delaware, 100% and 50%; District of Columbia, 100% and 37%; Hawaii, 90% and 0%; Idaho, 71.9% and 0%; Indiana, 79.7% and 18%; Michigan, 77.6% and 9%; Montana, 43.9% and 0%; Nevada, 100% and 0%; New Mexico, 81.7% and 0%; North Carolina, 91.2% and 38%; Ohio, 92.7% and 30%; Oregon, 66.7% and 0%; Vermont, 98.8% and 50%; Virginia, 91.8% and 32%; Washington, 100% and 12%; West Virginia, 67.5% and 20%; Wyoming, 74.7% and 0%. Perhaps the contrasts here presented will embolden the colleges to strengthen their standards of admission.

The data which follow show that there is not yet any significant trend to strengthen existing requirements. Only 49 colleges in the entire country have an entrance requirement of more than 2 units in one language; the average degree requirement continues to be merely the completion of an intermediate language course.

KEY

Notations before the semicolon refer to entrance requirements.
Notations after the semicolon refer to degree requirements.

—— means that the school has no requirement.

FL	Foreign Language	Gk	Greek
ML	Modern Language	u	means high school units (Carnegie units)
Lat	Latin	N	means new language

Pr Proficiency examination. The student may meet all or part of his requirement by passing a proficiency examination.
s after a numeral indicates the number of semester hours which fulfill the language requirement.
q after a numeral indicates the number of quarter hours which fulfill the language requirement.
Hs means that the degree requirement may be satisfied by high school units.
Pl means that a placement test determines how much of the degree requirement may be satisfied by high school work.

Examples:——; 12s means that
a. there is no language entrance requirement
b. the student must earn 12 semester hours of credit in a foreign language to satisfy the degree requirement, regardless of how much language he has studied in high school.

——; 12sHs means that
a. there is no language entrance requirement
b. the degree requirement, satisfied by 12 semester hours of a foreign language, may be anticipated partially or completely by high school credits (2 high school units are usually equivalent to one year of college language work, or 6–8 semester hours).

——; 12sHsPl means that
a. there is no entrance requirement
b. the degree requirement is satisfied by 12 semester hours of a foreign language. The number of hours may be lowered when the student presents an equivalent number of high school units. This is not an automatic procedure, however, but is determined by a placement test.

2u+2u; Pr means that
a. the entrance requirement is two Carnegie units in each of two foreign languages
b. the degree requirement may be satisfied only by a proficiency test.

2u; 12sHsPl means that
a. the entrance requirement is two Carnegie units in a foreign language
b. in addition to the units presented for entrance, the student must take 12 semester hours of language in college. If he has had more than 2 units of a language in high school, the number of semester hours may be reduced on the basis of his score on a placement examination.

3u; 6s/N18s means that
a. the entrance requirement is 3 Carnegie units in a foreign language
b. the degree requirement is 6 semester hours when the student continues in college the language studied in high school. If he begins a new language he college, he must take 18 semester hours of this language in college.
